HOW TO PLOW.

Fothe Editor of the National Republican:
Sim: I have never met with so much error in so Sin: I have never mot with so much error in so small a space as is contained in the foregoing description of good plowing, which purports to be an editorial of the American Agriculturist of a late date. It is a perversion of every true principle, not only of plow-making, but plowing. Why plow as all if it be not to disintegrate the soil and make it susceptible of receiving light, heat and moisture? As a seed bed it matters little which which moisture? As a seed bed it matters into which side of the soil is uppermost if one be as hard as the other; and if plowed by such a plow, having a mold-board and share four feet long, the side turned up would be rather the harder of the twe. You could walk upon it without making a footimpression upon its surface. A mold-board sur-face of four feet in length would require a strength of team commensurate with the extent of its surface, and sod passing over it must necessarily be compressed into a solidity and smoothness of sur-face which would defy the reception of atmosall. There is no constituent of a plow so excep-tionable as a long mold-board, first, because it requires great power to draw it; and, second, be-cause it puts a glazed surface upon the sward which makes it impervious to all the elements of a mold-board is short that the grass is not perfectly covered by the upturned clay. In fact, it is far more perfectly covered than if the sward stands upon its edge leaning upon another. In selecting a plew choose one with a short mold-board and and centre-draft beam, and you will have one of light draft, which leaves the soil having the ap-pearance that it has not been plowed but har-

They drove every colored man from the streets, stripping and whipping unmerication is a street, stripping and whipping unmerication is a sanited and drove off the police, and insulted the mayor. By such action they hoped to get up a right, and then charge it on the colored people; thus furnishing a pretext and excuse for the great eutrage they were even then planning, and which eutrage they were even then planning, and which eutrage they were even then planning and which eutrage they were even then planning. The property is the street of the property is the street of the property is the street of the planning and which is the street of the property is the street of the property is the street of the planning and which is the planning and the planning eutrage they were even then planning, and which was so foully consummated on Saturday last. It is the old story of the fable of the wolf and the lamb. The Legislature passed on Saturday is bill which authorises the judge of the Hustings Court of Petersburg to appoint a "municipal commission." This judge and commission, between them, have the power to appoint all the officers of the city, except a few iminor ones, which, for form's sake, are left to be elected by the people. The judge or his creatures fix the pay of all the efficers, whether elected or appointed; fix the penalty of the official bond, and can remove all or any of the officers at their sovereign will. HOW TO PLOW.

To their election of the Malignen's wise and sloquent review of the crusading temperance women wholly dispreves her position that women are unfit for public man who has attempted to deal with it. Unconsciously this lady is one of the best allies of the woman suffrage movement, for by the self-possession wherewith she comes the best allies of the woman suffrage movement, for by the self-possession wherewith she comen before the public without sacrificing her dignity or injuring her self-respect she clearly shows that a woman may do so with propriety. But while she commands our respect, it is proper to say that she totally misapprehends the position of the woman suffragists. No doubt Miss Anthony broke the law when she voted. Sha however, did not talk that we of the law and was advised that the two of the law and was advised to not take that view of the law, and was advised that she we of the law, and was advised that she was legally entitled to vote by able and eminest counsel. But she did no wreng; for no diafranchized persons are under any moral obligation to obey law which they are forbidden a votes. n making. The position held by the woman au in maxing. The position note up the vocation fragists is simply that practical experience has shown that distranchised persons commonly fall to obtain justice from Government or from other clarges. Mrs. Dahlgren also appears to misapprehend the nature of the commune, which, according to events observed in both Paris and New York, consists of the same element that made up the place investigation. in imperial Rome-sturdy, hay igapramuses and ruffians, unwilling to work and demanding that the State shall feed them; that the State shall PASSAGE OF THE PETERSBURG (VA.) confiscate other people's property for that pur-

She further-like most die come to partake of that idolatry which is sapping the strength of our people and destroying the American manhood—under reverence for an lone black man, without the countenance of law, but openly and boldly against the rights and thority. Law is an idol which our countryment liberties of twenty thousand citizens of the city have substituted for a king. Government is iberties of twenty thousand citizens of the city have substituted for a king. That is the country for Government clerks to go to, where millions of scree of lovely, fertile land is lying vecart, to be given away; land that can in ten years be made worth one thousand dollars per acre, and when planted in oranges will pay one thousand dollars per acre, and when planted in oranges will pay one thousand dollars per acre, and when planted in oranges will pay one thousand dollars per acre, and when planted in oranges will pay one thousand dollars per acre, and when planted in oranges will pay one thousand dollars per acre, and when planted in oranges will pay one thousand dollars per acre, and when planted in oranges and lemons are now in bloom, and the ripe fruit hanging on the same tree. There is no place on the whole footstool where a poor man, or a rich sme, can make a more desirable home, and cest so little. Still thousands of people are strugging on from year to year, in these cold States in poverty and hardship, or capsing a mere pittanes from day to day, with such a charming land under their very noses. Pay no attention to speculators in Western lands, but go to the "Land et Flowers," got well and grow rich and happy.
